From the Oregon border to San Francisco, the North Coast is best known for its gentle giants, historical lighthouses, quiet forests blanketed with fog, and abundant, lush vineyards.

With Coastal Redwood trees more than 300 feet high and 1,000 years old, the forests of the North Coast hold a distinct magic to the visitor while the Pacific Coast is a bustling commute for the roughly 15,000 gray whales migrating through its waters.

See the majestic beauty of the Avenue of Giants or create your own adventure hiking, fishing and surrounding yourself with the local wildlife while you experience new generations of farmers and winemakers focus on preserving the land as well as producing amazing food and wine.

TIME AWAY PAYS: TAKE VACATION DAYS

Take a Hike California

With nearly 5,000 moderate trails ranging from ½ mile to 349 miles it is no wonder California is rated in the top 10 of best states to hike. From the lowest point of 246 below sea level to the highest hike at 14,505 above and everything in between California's trails never disappoint. With names like Bumpass Hell and Devils Punchbowl and labeled as "out and back" "lollipop" or "loop" there is a trail for everyone in California. If you are looking for a great trail in your region check out some of the staff favorites.

North Coast

James Irvine Trail

Difficulty: Easy

Distance: 9 miles round trip

Gain: 450 feet

A great all around trail in the Redwoods for nature trips and birding.

Shasta Trinity

Bumpass Hell Trail

Difficulty: Easy

Distance: 3 miles round trip

Gain: 300 feet

Although the name may indicate otherwise this easy hike includes well-marked trails and a boardwalk so visitors can view the boiling springs.

San Francisco

Rodeo Beach Coastal Trail

Difficulty: Moderate

Distance: 4.8 Mile loop

Gain: 954 feet

Enjoy beautiful views of the rolling Bay Area hills and Pacific Ocean throughout this entire hike.

Delta Lodi

Cosumnes River Walk

Difficulty: Easy / ADA Accessible

Distance: 3.1-mile loop

Gain: 16 feet

This is a great hike for nature lovers with a variety of habitats from native grasslands, willow forests, marshland and more.

Central Valley

Pena Adobe Hills

Difficulty: Moderate

Distance: 3.2 miles out and back

Gain: 721 feet

With over 470 acres of hiking and biking trails this is a great stop off I-80 to stretch your legs. See if you can find the tree swings for a photo opportunity.

SHASTA CASCADE TRINITY

Come see Upstate CA! This is the place for blue-ribbon fishing, houseboats anchored in cool lakes, countless campgrounds, and inviting trails for hiking and mountain biking. Mt. Shasta looms high above with snowcapped volcanoes, while lava still flows under Lassen Volcanic National Park.

The Shasta Cascade Trinity region is California's northeast corner and outdoor-lover's paradise! With numerous opportunities to hike along trails, go boating, see waterfalls, view wildlife, picnic by lakes and streams, fish, hunt and more, you'll never run out of things to explore. There are small towns offering boutiques to shop in and cafes to dine or sip coffee at, the area is an ultimate escape from all the hustle and bustle of the big cities.

“SISKIYOU IS CALLING! WHERE CALIFORNIA’S REAL NORTH LIVES AND UNTAMED ADVENTURE RUNS FREE.”

Interstate 5 cuts straight through the heart of Siskiyou – which also happens to be the perfect halfway point for an overnight stop on the drive between Portland and the Bay Area, or LA and Seattle. You’ll know you’re here when you get your first glimpse of majestic Mount Shasta – looming impressively near the freeway and visible from nearly every corner of Siskiyou. Mount Shasta provides four seasons of excitement from hiking and paragliding to skiing and snowshoeing, and the communities that surround it are quaint and welcoming.

But there’s so much more to Siskiyou than just its distinctive icon, and well worth a visit in its own right. It’s a piece of god-touched country, brimming with easily accessible waterfalls, multiple federally-designated “wild and scenic” rivers, lakes, blue-ribbon trout, steelhead and salmon fishing, excellent cycling, and craft food and drinks – much of it just minutes off the Interstate. Not much farther afield, Siskiyou lays claim to the Lava Beds National Monument, as well as the headwaters of the mighty Sacramento River and much of the length of the Klamath River – including the Lower Klamath and Tule Lake Basins that have some of the best bird congregations outside of Alaska. It’s the kind of place where you can sleep on a train, visit a casino, eat homemade pies or just about catch steelhead from the deck of your RV. The people are friendly and the facilities are clean and safe, with ample room for even the biggest RV’s. If you have never explored California’s North then prepare for a treat because there is something here for the seeker in everyone.

Answer the call! Make an overnight in Siskiyou part of your journey.

JUMP INTO YOUR NEXT ADVENTURE

Clean, safe and easy access off Interstate 5, Siskiyou offers some of the best and most unique places to overnight in the north state.

SAN FRANCISCO

The San Francisco region is an international tourist destination. Famous for such architectural landmarks as the Golden Gate Bridge, the Transamerica building, Coit Tower, as well as many Victorian houses that still stand today.

Walk along Fisherman's Wharf, relax and have some fresh hot clam chowder and sourdough bread. Take a ferry to Alcatraz, visit a museum or have a picnic in Golden Gate Park. You won't be at a loss of things to do!

Head south along the coast and visit quaint coastal towns like Half Moon Bay. The southern part of the San Francisco Bay region is home to the Silicon Valley and such tech giants as Google, Facebook and Apple. You will also find more shopping, fine dining, museums and curiosities like the Winchester Mystery House.

Let's Go Camping!

Camping means something different to everyone. Yurts, cabins, and luxury RV campers may disagree with tenting, backpacking, and car-sleeping campers on what is the "best way" to camp. In reality, there is no right or wrong way to camp. Camping is a way to bond and reconnect with family and nature, with friends and the surrounding city. Camping can be a fun, alternative lodging option for an upcoming road trip or vacation, or long term housing while working far from home. Camping can be the splurge vacation of the year, or it can be a monthly trip to somewhere familiar. Camping is rapidly gaining popularity because of the versatility and people's desire to get away from the hustle and bustle of everyday life. At Camp-California, we obviously love camping, but we love all outdoor adventures; the absolute best way to enhance your upcoming camping trip is to sprinkle some outdoor fun in your schedule. Hiking, biking, nature preserves, kayak rentals, wineries, river rafting, fishing... there are endless activities in California, all just a short trip from your cozy campsite waiting to be explored!

Don't know where to start? That's where we come in – Camp-California is pleased to offer a free eNewsletter, Around the Campfire, that offers ideas, destinations, campground recommendations, outdoor activities, and more. With everything from the best hikes in each region, to campgrounds with special holiday activities, Around the Campfire is the best way to stay in the know and surprise your kids, friends, or family with some fun activities and adventures during your trip!

SAN FRANCISCO NORTH/PETALUMA KOA

SAN FRANCISCO, NAPA VALLEY, SONOMA COUNTY, AND COASTAL BEACHES

Located in one of the most beautiful areas of the world, just a short drive north of the Golden Gate Bridge and minutes from local wineries and breweries, San Francisco North/Petaluma KOA is your ticket to exploring the North Bay area. Adults and kids alike will find plenty to keep them busy from the rock wall, jumping pillow, pool and spa, mega playground, banana bike rentals, horse shoe pits, bocce ball, and a nearby driving range and world class golf course.

Or jump on the new SMART train for a trip to the city of San Francisco then relax in the country at SF KOA. Located on the doorstep of Napa and Sonoma County wineries, giant redwoods, beaches, Six Flags Discovery Kingdom, Sonoma State University and Sonoma Raceway, SF KOA is the at the heart of the bay area happenings.

In the mood for some adult time? Take a tour of Lagunitas Brewing Company, visit artisan cheese farms, try your luck at the Graton Resort & Casino, or immerse yourself in shopping extravaganza at the Premium Outlet mall then return to Kamp and enjoy a family movie with the kids (seasonal).

With accommodations to suit every preference, San Francisco North/Petaluma KOA is your place to stay in the bay.

Come join the fun!

Boom and Bust: The Fading Legacy of California's Ghost Towns

California has no shortage of ghost towns. They can be found in every region, tucked away in the landscape or boldly on display as a tourist attraction. A few found at the bottom of manmade lakes can only be seen during a drought year. But where did they come from and where did they go?

California's early expansion began with the greatest mass migration of people the nation has ever seen. As these early settlers poured into the territory, small towns sprouted up as prolific as the California poppy and the landscape was forever changed. Hopeful prospectors came to find their fortune in gold, farmers came for free land, and others recognized an opportunity to make their fortune in commerce by providing much needed goods and services to these new residents. Folks put down roots, raised families, farmed, and opened businesses, allowing communities to grow and flourish for over a decade. The railroad made its way across the country connecting California to the prosperous east coast and a new way of life was born.

Mining was hard, and many recognized they would never achieve the fortune they hoped for so as new opportunities to earn a living became available, prospectors were swayed away from drudgery of the mining life.

As the mines dried up or became too costly to maintain and hydraulic mining became illegal many of the residents of these small towns opted to move on to bigger cities, or the fertile central valley to farm and raise families. There was no UHaul to help you move, so pioneers often packed what little they could into a wagon and left behind most of their possessions. Eventually, many of these small towns were abandoned or diminished to only a few residents and as such, the Ghost Town was born.

Not all of today's ghost towns were born from the mining industry. Alcatraz, for instance was once a thriving city with approximately 300 civilians and 275 inmates living on the island but was abandoned in 1963 after 29 years of operation. Hearst Castle, celebrating it's 100 years, was abruptly abandoned with nearly all the art and possessions intact when the owner was taken ill in the 1940's. Lastly, Pioneertown wasn't an actual city, but a western movie set abandoned when an interest in Westerns was replaced with war time sitcoms. These, along with the other towns on our list, provide a unique glimpse into California's rich history.

Six miles west of Redding sits a row of old, half-ruined brick buildings that was formerly the "Queen City" of Northern California's mining district. Shasta State Historic Park, often referred to as "Old Shasta" by locals, includes ruins along with some nearby roads, cottages, and cemeteries, all of which serve as reminders of the bustling activity that once took place in this former mining town. The County Courthouse has been restored to its original 1862 appearance and serves as a visitor center filled with historic California art. The courtroom, jail, and gallows have also been restored and furnished with many authentic 1860s items to interpret Shasta County's justice system during the gold rush. The Blumb Bakery was restored so weekend visitors can see 1870s baking styles and techniques in action. The park was unfortunately damaged by the Carr Fire in 2018, during which the elementary school was destroyed, and the brewery and cemetery damaged. Visitors can still enjoy Old Shasta and relive the gold rush era through the artwork on display and events hosted by the Shasta Historical Society, including Holiday in the Park, Shasta Heritage Day, and a reenactment of

Joaquin Miller's experiences living in Northern California during the 1850s, as told in his novel Life Amongst the Modocs. www.visitredding.com/shasta-state-historic-park (530) 243-8194

In the misty redwood forests of Humboldt County sits the remnants of the unsettling abandoned town of Falk. Falk was built around the Falk lumber mill in 1884, and like other new townships during this time, grew and thrived unusually fast. Dozens of small communities became outposts deep in the forest for the men and women who logged the giant redwood trees to live. Unfortunately, when the Great Depression hit, the Falk lumber mill was forced to close in 1937. Since Falk was over an hour from Eureka, and life in the deep forest was very tedious, nearly all the residents abandoned the town. Now, the original homes are completely buried, and the only visible structures are a reconstructed barn at the end of a spooky trail. The self-guided tour starts about 50 yards down the trail and takes about an hour at 2-miles long. Located between the San Francisco Bay and Sacramento, the Delta towns cast a certain magical spell upon visitors with cities and towns such as Walnut Grove, Isleton, Bethel Island, and Lodi. With its unique setting, gorgeous climate, and longstanding winemaking traditions, the Lodi Wine Country has the unofficial title of Zinfandel Capital of the World with world-class vineyards that produce forty-percent of the premium Zinfandel in the state.

Many of the Delta's towns have changed little from when they were founded, and proof of this area's rich heritage can be seen throughout the region. Delta solidified its place in California history in March of 2019 when it became California's very first National Heritage Area. NHAs are places where natural, cultural, and historic resources come together to form nationally important lived-in landscapes. The dedication of Delta's founding Chinese immigrants to building and maintaining the Delta's infrastructure during the Gold Rush has led to two-thirds of California's water coming from these rivers and confluences, and contributed the Delta's permanent mark on California history.

CENTRAL VALLEY

The Central Valley region is home to miles and miles of private farmland that provides much of the produce that Californians enjoy year-round. Cruise the oak-shaded country roads to farm stands overflowing with fresh produce. Gaze onto orchards, vineyards, and fruit trees for as far as the eye can see!

The lifestyle of the Central Valley has inspired many writers and songwriters including Merle Haggard, Buck Owens and John Steinbeck. Rich in history, the region has several museums that one can visit like the California Railroad Museum, Antique Tool Museum, Crocker Art Museum and more! Campers and RVers won't be at a loss of things to do and see when they visit the Central Valley where there is always more to explore.

THE PINE & THE PALM

With all the rivalry between NorCal and SoCal have you ever paused to consider a place where north and south to come together in perfect harmony? Likely not, but such a place does exist and if you blink you just might miss it.

If you have ever traveled along highway 99 from Merced to Fresno, you have passed this inconspicuous California landmark. The Pine and the Palm stand together in unison representing the center of California and their symbolism cannot be mistaken.

The majestic pine (Himalayan deodar cedar)[1] represents the entrance to Northern California where the pines touch sky and mountain peaks abound.

The feathery palm (Canary Island date palm)[1] opens the door to Southern California where the sun shines daily and the beaches sparkle in the golden light.

How these two friends became united is shrouded in mystery. Some say that they were part of an improvement project of the Leyh family's store and rental cabins. Others believe they were planted by the students of Fresno Normal School (now California State University Fresno), however there is no documentation to confirm either story. [1] It is however, believed that the pine and the palm were planted in the 1920's along what was then the only route between Mexico and Canada. Most believe that at the time the planters assumed they were marking the very center of the state. (With the assistance of modern surveying equipment, we now know that the center is 45 miles north east in North Fork.)

However, they came to be we do know they are a much-loved symbol of the Golden State. Public outcry saved the trees from destruction when highway 99 was scheduled for updates and a new pine was planted when the original toppled due to a storm in 2005.

You can find the trees in the median of highway 99 between exit 146 and 147 in Madera County. The latitude and longitude coordinates of their location are 36.904368, -120.000806. [1]

WELCOME TO BAKERSFIELD

THE SOUND OF

Something Fun

THE SOUND OF Tastes

Bakersfield is famous for its many Basque restaurants, but it also has very diverse dining options. Thrillist.com named local eatery Nuestro Mexico as serving the “Best Tacos in the State of California.” Area restaurants have hosted visits from both Alton Brown and Guy Fieri from the Food Network. Bakersfield is also home to the last Woolworth’s lunch counter still operating in the United States. If you’re in the mood for Mediterranean, have a craving for calamari, or even a hankering for a hamburger, Bakersfield has a restaurant to suit your taste.

THE SOUND OF Family Fun

Wallethub.com named Bakersfield the number one city for family entertainment. That’s no surprise considering all of the family-friendly venues and attractions in Bakersfield. Camelot Park has an arcade, go karts, bumper boats, mini golf and more. The BLVD has bowling, laser tag, a ropes course, arcade games and great food. Flight Fit N Fun has wall-to-wall trampolines, climbing structure and a ninja course. Dewar’s Ice Cream and Candy Factory has been serving delicious treats for more than 100 years and they give factory tours. California Living Museum (CALM) is home to more than 250 animals native to California.

THE SOUND OF Entertainment

California’s ninth largest city is full of things to see and do, with live music, comedy, museums, family fun spots and more. Bakersfield is also the racing capital of California with four of the most active raceways in the state. There are a number of live playhouses in the city if you want to catch a live performance. With live music almost every night of the year at Bakersfield’s many venues, there’s always something happening in Bakersfield. Looking for a unique movie-going experience? We have two movie theaters with a full restaurant menu and bar with in-theater service.

THE SOUND OF Culture

Explore the Bakersfield Art Trek and discover a walking tour of almost 100 pieces of public art and galleries in the downtown Arts District. On the first Friday of every month the downtown streets abound with fun experiences at the First Friday Art Walk. There is art, live music, and more. Every October the Bakersfield Museum of Art hosts the annual weekend-long Via Arte Italian Street Painting Festival, turning a parking lot into a beautiful temporary art gallery.

THE SOUND OF Adventure

Looking for some adventure in the great outdoors? Bakersfield has everything from hiking, biking, fishing, boating and more. The Kern River Parkway Trail is a 30 mile paved path that runs through the city. The mighty Kern River offers whitewater world-class rafting experiences for everyone from beginners to experts with Class I to Class V rapids. Just south of the city, the Wind Wolves Preserve is the west coast's largest non-profit preserve with bird watching hikes. Wild Wolves also hosts night hikes and movies in the canyon, a fun way to enjoy the great outdoors.

THE SOUNDS OF Bakersfield

The Bakersfield Sound is a sub-genre of county music that got its start in the honky-tonks and dance halls in the area. Musicians like Buck Owens and Merle Haggard made our own brand of music world famous. In the mid 1990's another group of musicians from Bakersfield went on to create their own unique sound and performed in packed arenas around the world- you know them as KORN. Bakersfield is also known for its large scale, annual Jazz Festival and its weekly, free Jazz Workshop every Tuesday night. The music of Bakersfield sounds like a good time.

The adventure of the Old West is alive with winding trails to hike, bike horseback ride, caverns to spelunk and native wildlife to watch. The region also boasts an abundance of lakes and rivers fed by Sierra runoff that offer many opportunities to go whitewater rafting, tubing, boating and fishing.

Little towns nestled in the foothills along Highway 49 are hidden like the nuggets of gold that brought many to the area. Here, the state's past, present, and future merge into one unforgettable destination. Come see the new generation of pioneers, farm-to-table restaurants, or pan for gold like a true 49er.

Home to the Sierra Nevada Mountain Range, Lake Tahoe, Mammoth Mountain, two National Parks and Mt Whitney, the highest peak in California, the High Sierra region is an adventure seekers paradise.

Designated a World Heritage Site in 1984, Yosemite Valley is internationally recognized for its granite cliffs, waterfalls, clear streams, lakes, mountains and glaciers. Climbers will find an abundance of rugged peaks and glacier-carved granite to play on and anglers will find fish in any of the lakes and streams.

Known for its beaches and ski resorts Lake Tahoe is one of the largest fresh water lakes spanning two states and boasts world class skiing, dining, and hiking along its emerald shores. Embark on a 72 mile journey unlike any other around this stunning California landmark.

From skiing in the Winter and wildflowers blanketing the ground in Spring and Summer, perfect for picnics and hikes, the region has something for everyone.

FIREWOOD Buy It Where You Burn IT!

Tree-killing insects and diseases lurking in firewood can devastate native forests and valuable landscaping trees. These insects and diseases can't move far on their own, but when you transport firewood you transport the insects as well. An infestation can start simply by setting your wood down next to your firepit. The nonnative pests leave their host transport wood for a forest of new timber.

New infestations can destroy our forests, lessen property values, and cost huge sums of money to control. Some of the pests and diseases carried by firewood include: Invasive Shot-Hole Borers, Goldspotted Oak Borer, Redbay Ambrosia Beetle, Gypsy Moth, Emerald Ash Borer, Asian Longhorned Beetle, and Diseases such as Sudden Oak Death (see <http://firewood.ca.gov/index2/pests.html>).

Our native trees have evolved to survive with local insects, and diseases and the native predators eat native insects which keeps their numbers in check. Non-native insects and diseases have few (if any) predators, and the native trees have few (if any) natural defenses against them. Tiny insect eggs and microscopic fungal spores are not visible to the naked eye and can elude experts, but these tiny threats are enough to destroy an entire ecosystem.

Never assume wood that "looks safe" is safe to move. The California Firewood Task Force recommends using only wood that has been collected within the region and to buy it locally to where you plan to burn it. A good rule of thumb is "The shorter the distance you move firewood, the better." When transporting firewood from outside California, it is subject to inspection at border stations and may be confiscated if pests are observed.

Bodie is "a town frozen in time." During the gold rush boom in the 1880s, the town of Bodie grew to have a population of around 10,000 people. Bustling with families, miners, and store owners, along with robbers, gunfighters, a red-light district, and travelers from all over the world, Bodie was destined to be ridden with crime. There were as many as 65 saloons in town at one point, and they were always filled with miners after their days spent in the mills. The mixture of money, alcohol, and gold would sometimes be deadly. There are reports that the residents would often ask "Have we a man for breakfast?", which was a polite way of asking if there were any fatal fights the night before. Bodie was more widely known for its lawlessness rather than its riches, and this reputation combined with several fires, Prohibition, and the Great Depression would send Bodie into an irreversible downward spiral. Eventually, the losses from the mines outweighed the gains, and Bodie was finally referred to as a ghost town in 1915. When the Bodie Railway was abandoned and scrapped for iron in 1917, Bodie was almost completely abandoned. There is a story of a little girl whose family was moving from San Francisco to Bodie, and in her diary was written either "Good, by God, I'm going to Bodie" – or – "Goodbye God, I'm going to Bodie", which perfectly captures the dichotomous reputation of Bodie. Today, visitors can explore Bodie Historic State Park and walk down the deserted streets once filled with people, gold, alcohol, and crime. After a fire broke out in the Chinese community of Walnut Grove, the members of that community decided they needed a town of their own and began working with land-owner George Locke to turn their dreams into the eventual town of Locke. George Locke leased the land to the original settlers, because the California Alien Land Law of 1913 prohibited selling farmlands to Asian immigrants; many Chinese immigrants were facing unfair discrimination in bigger cities, so Locke served as a promising venture for people and families trying to solidify their piece of the American Dream. Locke has gone down in history as the nation's only town completely settled and inhabited by Chinese settlers. Today, Locke's Chinese population is almost nonexistent, due to many of the original settling families branching out to city suburbs as they received higher education and more progressive views about immigrants were adopted. Locke was designated a National Historic Landmark in 1990 so visitors can appreciate the architecture, history, and hard work that the original Chinese settlers put into this riverside town. In the heart of Gold Country, North Bloomfield takes visitors back 150 years in this preserved gold rush town. Originally named Humbug due to a few failed gold mining trips, the population eventually reached almost 2,000 people once hydraulic mining came into play, which utilizes water to wash away mountainsides in search of gold. As gold mining flourished, the town was renamed North Bloomfield, although this new designation would be short lived. Hydraulic mining was causing countless environmental disasters and was eventually made illegal in 1884. This effectively ended all gold mining efforts in North Bloomfield, causing nearly all miners and their families to abandon their town. Many of the original buildings are still standing today, with some preservation improvements made when necessary. Although not totally

Although Hearst Castle is not nearly as rustic as some of the other ghost towns in California, it was still abruptly abandoned and would have been forgotten if not for the impressive architecture, art, and history inside its walls. William Randolph Hearst began building "La Cuesta Encantada" (The Enchanted Hill) after he inherited $11 million dollars and the 40,000-acre estate after his mother's passing. Hearst began putting his fortune into fruition, and from 1920 to 1939, the castle was under construction constantly in an attempt to cater to Hearst's high-profile guests like Charlie Chaplin and Winston Churchill. When the Great Depression hit along with millions of dollars in debt, Hearst was forced to cease all construction and sell most of his art collection. Hearst's health was declining, and he left the castle for the last time in May 1947. Luckily, the Hearst Corporation donated Hearst Castle, the gardens, and much of the remaining art to the state of California. Since it was abandoned by its original owner and creator, it has become a major tourist attraction and point of intrigue for many, who are all in awe of the man who built his castle just to abandon it. When John Sutter arrived on the shore of the American River in 1839 and began establishing Sutter's Fort, the traffic his fort brought in created the need for commercial businesses, and the City of Sacramento was created. Although Sacramento's waterfront was an ideal location for success, it was also prone to severe flooding. After several flooding events nearly destroying the entire city, the worst of which being in winter of 1861, effectively turning the Sacramento Valley into an almost 300-mile long inland sea. As many residents left the city for their own safety, others had an idea – raising the streets, buildings, and entire city above the flood level. Thousands of yards of materials were brought in on wagons, and the project to save Sacramento began. As the raising of the city was completed, the old infrastructure created tunnels and corridors underneath the surface of the bustling city. Today, the history of these hardworking settlers can be seen throughout the Old Sacramento Waterfront, a unique 28-acre National Historic Landmark District and State Historic Park that tells the stories of California's gold rush beginnings. Visitors can experience the California State Railroad Museum (the largest railroad museum in North America with a historical train ride), tour the spooky underground tunnels with the Sacramento History Museum, and take part in "Waterfront Days" on Memorial Day Weekend, featuring Old West theatrics, history reenactments, wagon rides, and more. Off the coast of San Francisco sits one of the most interesting abandoned communities in Northern California – Alcatraz Island. Like many mining towns in California, Alcatraz's original purpose was abandoned, and is now a point of fascination for locals and visitors from all over the world. Alcatraz Island was originally meant primarily for a lighthouse, but since has functioned as a military fort, a military prison, and, most famously, Alcatraz Federal Penitentiary. When Alcatraz Island become home to a federal prison in 1934, it was meant to hold the "worst of the worst" – inmates from all over the country who were transferred from other federal prisons for causing problems. Due to its location and the need for maximum security around the clock, Alcatraz was by far the most expensive prison in the country; the expenses coupled with a major escape attempt in 1962 lead to the decision to close the prison in 1963. The infamous inmates combined with attempted escapes, ghost stories, and other rumors surrounding this eerie island has made Alcatraz Island a popular destination for supernatural and historical fans alike. All rumors aside, during its peak, Alcatraz housed an average of 260 inmates along with housing on the island for select staff; inmates and staff also ate all three meals together, every day. Alcatraz sees well over 1 million visitors each year, who can enjoy the chilling stories and rich history of this unique micro-community through tours of the island and main cellhouse. Once a booming oil drilling town in Los Angeles County, Mentryville is now preserved as a California State Historical Landmark that welcomes visitors to learn about the history of the origin and downfall of this small town. In 1900, the Los Angeles Times said Mentryville was "an ideal community of modest homes", which included a schoolhouse, social hall, bakery, boarding house, a blacksmith shop, a gas-lit tennis court, croquet fields, and more. One thing missing from the town that was common in most other gold rush settlements was a bar; founder Charles Mentry prohibited drinking and foul language in his town to protect his puritanism. When the oil yield began slowing down and the oil industry started changing, almost all the residents of Mentryville left, many tearing the boards and nails from their homes and taking the scraps with them. By 1962, Mentryville was nothing but a ghost town with only a caretaker living in Mentry's former 13-room house, who would eventually be forced to leave after an earthquake destroyed the home in 1994. Today, visitors can see Charles Mentry's grand thirteen-room mansion, the schoolhouse, and a barn still standing, and learn about the history behind the unique, puritanical town of Mentryville. Most gold rush activity took place in Northern California, although it wasn't unheard of for Southern California to experience some of the action. In early 1870, a cattleman found the first fleck of Southern California gold in a creek, creating San Diego's first and only gold rush. Although Julian was never abandoned, the town's reason for settling soon changed course. As with the rest of the gold rush towns, when the search for gold was eventually a dead end, few pioneers stayed and began farming the rich land. The farmers quickly discovered Julian to be a perfect place to grow apples, and apples are still grown there to this day; Julian is now widely known for their famous apple pies and their annual Julian Apple Days Festival. Visitors can enjoy a wide variety of year-round activities for families and adults, including their historical museums, horse-drawn carriage rides, wine tasting, apple picking, gold mine tours and gold panning, and more. <https://visitjulian.com/>

The central coast is a dreamland for travelers with its stunning coastline to the west and rugged mountains to the east. Its mild temperatures and beautiful landscapes have attracted many to this area, including famous writers and artists.

Those that appreciate architecture will want to see the remarkable and indulgent beauty of Hearst Castle, one of the most popular non-theme-park attractions in the state. A stop at the Monterey Bay Aquarium is a must do with the Open Sea gallery that is home to schools of fish, stingrays and green sea turtles. Along the notorious HWY 1 you will pass the beach towns of Santa Barbara, Santa Cruz and Big Sur, see jagged sea cliffs, and rolling wine country as you enjoy California's Central Coast.

SLO CAL

A place where slow will set you free. San Luis Obispo County (SLO CAL®) is as California as it gets – from mountain trails to sandy beaches, city culture to casual wine country – all in one easily-traveled area! Here, you'll discover a pace that will allow you to find your natural rhythm and catch up with the things that matter most to you.

SLO CAL is home to multiple wine regions with over 250 wineries and 40 different grape varieties. In addition to wine, craft beer, cider and distilleries pepper the communities and lands of SLO CAL. Designated wine trails and clustered tasting rooms make it easy to plan a wine-filled itinerary for a quick afternoon or long weekend of tasting. The uncrowded roads and absolutely stunning scenery enhance the experience, working a playful magic that encourages visitors to relax and delight in their travels.

Slow means taking the time to sip and savor. A vibrant agricultural and wine scene pairs perfectly with SLO CAL Crafted® goods and food – including lavender, olive oils, avocados, cheese and cocktail mixers. Local farms and producers deliver their goods fresh to a dozen year-round farmers markets and to the tables of SLO CAL's incredible restaurants. A wide array of farm stands, retailers and U-pick orchards connect you to the region's agricultural roots and allow you to take these fresh (and downright delicious) foods on the go.

Highway 1 is California's original road trip and this famous byway is ready to feel your wheels in SLO CAL. These views of prime Pacific coastline are prized, loved and highly photographed by locals and visitors alike. From Ragged Point in the north to Nipomo in the south, an overwhelming amount of activities exist. Stop off and gaze at bellowing elephant seals or for a slice of Olallieberry pie. From hiking to art gallery hopping and the majestic Hearst Castle, your Highway 1 itinerary will be full of iconic memories.

Take some time off the road, and explore SLO CAL's natural wonders by foot, horseback or two wheels! Be awed by the grandeur of Morro Rock. Go wild on the Oceano Dunes. Seek serenity on the trails of Montaña de Oro State Park. Get mesmerized by thousands of delicate, fluttering wings at the Monarch butterfly grove. However you choose to reconnect here, do it with what inspires you, with nature and with your loved ones.

Camping in SLO CAL means scenic locations near the mountains, overlooking vineyard valleys or near the Pacific Ocean for sunny days that melt effortlessly into star-studded nights. The RV parks here offer easy access to a wide variety of views, amenities and experiences – from coastal, family-friendly communities to zip-line adventures, the tastes of wine country and fresh-from-the-sea foodie hot spots. With a variety of options, you can spend the night in a cozy rental cabin, snuggle in your own RV or lie under the stars in your tent. Discover the California less traveled in SLO CAL, San Luis Obispo County!

NEW LAW, NEW PRODUCTS

If you spend any time in a recreational vehicle (RV) or boat, you have likely experienced unpleasant odors from the gray water and black water holding tanks. There are several products available to control these odors. However, they may be more harmful than helpful. Some of the products contain chemicals which adversely impacts the septic systems that receive your holding-tank contents and, as a result, may pollute water resources.

The purpose of these products is to break down waste with the help of microorganisms or good bacteria. Some of the more popular treatment products contain chemicals like Formaldehyde. While effective at reducing holding tank odors, formaldehyde also kills the beneficial bacteria used to digest human waste in septic systems. When too much formaldehyde-laden waste is dumped into septic systems, it can cause the septic systems to fail and potentially contaminate groundwater supplies, potentially closing your favorite campground forever.

WHAT ARE YOU USING?

Check your RV for prohibited products, use bacteria or enzyme-based products only

WHICH PRODUCTS ARE PROHIBITED?

Products containing Formaldehyde

WHAT YOU CAN DO!

Use Bacteria or Enzyme based products only

Sunshine, perfect weather and plenty of sandy coastline make the San Diego region the perfect place to vacation. Swim or surf in the warm ocean water or bury your toes in the sand and sunbathe on a beach. Check out the wildlife at some well-known animal parks, like Sea World, the San Diego Zoo Safari Park and the Birch Aquarium, the largest oceanographic museum in the USA. For the family, a trip to Legoland is sure to be a hit with the young ones and the young-at-heart!

"The Beach City", San Diego is known for its mild year-round climate, natural deep-water harbor, extensive beaches, long association with the United States Navy, and rich military history. The regions Balboa Park features more than 17 museums, galleries, and performing arts venues. Its hard to find a better family destination. Happiness is calling from San Diego.

The state motto, Eureka! Is a Greek word translated "I have found it!" The motto was adopted in 1849 after the discovery of gold.

Pioneertown is not like other abandoned mining ghost towns in California's desert. This scenic, western town was built in 1946 by and for movie industry professionals. Dick Curtis had a dream of a town that could function as a "living breathing movie set" – a place where those in the movie industry could work and play. With cheap land starting at $900/acre, Pioneertown soon became a fully functioning town with a well-established community and big plans for expansion, including a 40-acre lake, a golf course, an airport, and a shopping mall. As the original investors began shifting their money toward other ventures, land sales plummeted; the lack of safe water available to the town and the fact that western films were losing popularity, Pioneertown's heyday seemed to be finished. Today, Pioneertown welcomes guests to visit to Mane Street (which is accessible by "hoof 'n' foot only" – no cars.) Mane Street is the length of a few city blocks and is home to functioning retail shops, false fronts perfect for photos, and even fake gunfights on some summer weekends. Although it is no longer a hotspot for filming movies, Pioneertown is truly "Where the Old West Lives Again". visotpioneertown.com/

Calico is an Old West mining town located in the beautiful Calico Mountains of the Mojave Desert region of Southern California. In 1881, prospectors discovered silver ore in the dusty mountains near Wall Street Canyon. Soon after, Calico had over 500 mines that reportedly produced more than $20 million in silver ore over a 12-year span. In its prime, Calico was bustling with prospectors and their families during a time when silver was king. The Calico Mining district became one of the richest in the state and could boast boomtown status, producing not only silver, but over $9 million in borax production, and a town with a population of 3,500 that had several saloons, a Chinatown, a schoolhouse and a Red-light district.

According to an article once published in the Los Angeles Times:

Calico was a rip-roaring town teeming with miners, boomers, gamblers and fortune hunters. Thousands of men swarmed up the canyons and gulches from their stone huts each morning to grab with picks and blast with powder the rich silver ore. A dog carried the mail in pouches strapped to his back. The justice of the peace chewed tobacco and swallowed the juice. And the gaudy colors in the minerals stained the mountains which formed a backdrop for it all, reminding someone of a piece of calico fabric. Thus, Calico was named.

When silver lost its value in the mid-1890s, Calico began to lose the majority of its population. Many miners packed up, loaded their mules and moved away, abandoning the town that they once called home. In the blink of an eye, Calico became a ghost of its former self.

This all changed in the 1950s when Walter Knott, the creator of Knott's Berry Farm, purchased the Calico property. Knott had at one time homesteaded in the Mojave Desert and worked in the Calico mines. He purchased the Calico property with the desire to restore the historic town to a semblance of its former physical glory, which ultimately preserved the historic significance of this era for posterity. Mr. Knott architecturally restored many of the buildings to look as they did in the 1880s. In November of 1966, Mr. Knott donated Calico Ghost Town to the County of San Bernardino to continue the operation of the town as a Regional Park. Calico was designated as State Historical Landmark #782. In 2005, the town was proclaimed by, then Governor Arnold Schwarzenegger, to be California's Silver Rush Ghost Town.

Today, Calico is part of the San Bernardino County Regional Parks' system visited by people from around the country and all over the world. In 2018, the Park welcomed over 240,000 visitors. The park offers visitors a glimpse into the past with an opportunity to share in the town's rich history and enjoy the natural beauty of the surrounding desert landscape. Along with its history, Calico Ghost Town has shops, restaurants, a cemetery, mine and ghost tours, gold panning, a working train, trails overlooking the desert landscape, OHV trails, the Lane House & Museum, and offers camping and outdoor recreation 364 days a year. The park is only closed on Christmas day. Throughout the year, Calico hosts some exciting events including Calico Days celebrating the rich history of the town, Ghost Haunts during the Halloween season, Bluegrass Festival, Civil War re-enactments, and a special Holiday Festival complete with performers, carolers and a tree lighting ceremony. Its campgrounds offer 259 sites as well as a mini bunkhouse that sleeps 6 and a large bunkhouse that sleeps up to 20. Both bunkhouses come complete with bunk beds, electrical, heating and air conditioning. Admission into the town is included with all camping. <https://cms.sbcounty.gov/parks/Parks/CalicoGhostTown.aspx> 800 862 2542

DESERTS

Far from the bright lights of the big cities, you will be able to witness some of the most beautiful sunsets and star-filled skies you've ever seen. Campers, RVers, hikers and rock climbers flock to the region to explore places like Death Valley, Joshua Tree National Park and Anza-Borrego Desert State Park.

With wind-swept sand dunes, stunning rock formations, a wealth of animal and plant life, the Desert Region of California will leave you speechless. The region's year-round warm climate is perfect for those who enjoy a round of golf, tennis or sipping drinks poolside at one of the many resort oases that dot the landscape.
